THE EXTRAVAGANT BOY.

Mrs. Betty Green Thinks Her Son Did Not Make a Close Deal.
[From the New York Press.]
A man who read in yesterday's Press the description of how Mrs. Betty Green looked on Broadway met her in the Astor house yesterday morning and said that the peculiarities of this extraordinary woman were numerous and manifold. He was in the Chemical Bank one day in conversation with the cashier when Mrs. Green passed through into an inner office. The cashier called out and said: "Oh, by the way, Mrs. Green, your son bought that railroad yesterday."
"Did he?" said the lady, stopping short. "How much did he pay for it?"
"Two million five hundred thousand dollars."

"The extravagant boy!" said the fond mother, indignantly. "If I had been there I could have bought it for $50,000 less."
That was the only comment she made on the transaction which most people would consider of supreme magnitude. The chances are that she was right.

He Was Undecided.

Lady (handing out some cold victuals)—
"Can't you find any work to do?"
Tramp—"I suppose I could, mum; but it is not every kind of work that suits me."
Lady—"What work would suit you?"
Tramp—"I ain't just made up my mind about it yet, mum; but I am doing a powerful lot of thinking on the subject."

Mr. Friepan. "Dear Miss Grabber, may I dare to hope that some day you will be my wife?"
Miss Grabber. "You may, Henry, and the sooner the better. Get your life insured and the license to-morrow. We'll get married the day after. Delays are dangerous."—Judge.

Diary of a Divorcee.
Stout City, February 1.

Here I am in this far-away Western resort for the unhappily married and here I must remain for ninety days—three whole months—just fancy it. Somehow it sounds like the sentence of some unhappy prisoner, but at any rate when freedom comes at last I will next time for, even though divorce is comparatively easy in this state, it has the drawback of enforced exile, and I hardly think I would like to go through that again, at least not for several years to come. How positively I speak of a second marriage—well, why shouldn't I? Every one has united in declaring me beautiful ever since I was carried about in my nurse's arms, and unless my mirror tells I am not a fright at the present time, though it is a wonder I am not wrinkled and gray after my two years' experience with that man. Once I would never have believed that I could characterize one whom I thought perfect by two such odious and expressive words, but now avow change tout cela, and here I am and here I'll stay until a just judge declares me a divorcee—horrid application—but then I think it over so much nicer than unhappy wife.

Merely, that a journey it was—cold and bleak, with hardly half a dozen passengers for company. Timmins declared that if she had not been in our family since her mother was a little girl she would have left me at St. Louis. Ignoring the rather mysterious and complicated character of a statement that implied most marvelous precocity on the part of her mother, I praised the poor old thing for her devotion, gave her $10 and told her that when we got back to New York she should have a new silk rock and six weeks' vacation. These promises restored her to good humor, though she still complains of the hardness of this "hole," as she would persist in calling this refuge for the unmarried. If she had left me at St. Louis, I think I could have managed for that splendid-looking man who was so attentive while I am sure, had seen

WOMEN BENEFIT THE PEOPLE

Opening Museums on Sundays Looked Upon With Much Favor.

ADVANTAGES TO BE DERIVED

Citizens Claim the Public Museums in the District are a Means of Education, a Source of Recreation, and Would Be Highly Beneficial to the People.

The subject of opening the public museums and buildings to visitors on Sunday has been agitated for a considerable time. Every effort has been put forth to induce the government to throw open the doors on that day, so that the large floating population might have the privilege of going through the buildings. Men in every walk of life, from the clergyman to the artisan, have earnestly pleaded for a reform in this direction. There is, however, a strong opposition to the proposition among some of the ultra-religious people. They believe that the opening of public buildings will be a desecration of the Sabbath, and they oppose the movement with all the force at their command.

The Times has taken a lead in this movement, and from time to time has published a series of interviews, and to-day supplements those already printed with others from leading citizens in the district.

Prof. Lester F. Ward, of the Smithsonian Institution, No. 1464 Rhode Island avenue, said: "I am decidedly in favor of opening the museums, public libraries, and similar places should be opened to the public on Sunday."

W. H. Barker, 1017 K street northwest, said: "I am in favor of opening the Smithsonian Institution, the museum, and other such public departments on Sunday as a means of diffusing and promoting intelligence among the masses. I believe it would be highly beneficial to a great many people."

E. B. Fairchild, No. 321 D street southeast, said: "I think it would be a good thing, and if you want my reasons for approving it, I just say that I heartily endorse the views expressed by Dr. Kent in his sermon upon the subject, which was published a week or two ago in 'The Times.'"

W. L. Dewart, No. 418 Massachusetts avenue northwest, said: "I think it would be one of the best things that could happen to this city. I know of no good reason why it should not be a good thing, and I heartily approve the time to visit them during the week. I am glad to know that some of the ministers of the city are united in an effort to have them opened."

C. E. Metcalf, No. 1631 Marion street northwest, said: "I am certainly in favor of the proposition. I know of no good reason why people who cannot otherwise visit the departments should not be permitted to have the privilege on Sunday."

R. B. Packer, No. 1918 Sunderland place northwest, said: "I am in favor of keeping the public buildings open on Sunday, because to do so would give to persons constantly employed during the week an opportunity to visit them, and would also keep many people away from disreputable places."

M. P. Prichard, Mount Pleasant, said: "I endorse the proposition to open the public buildings in Washington to visitors on Sundays, and I hope to see it adopted."

Lewis H. Stabler, No. 1113 M street northwest, said: "Yes, I think it will be highly beneficial to the people to open the government institutions on Sunday. People desire a great deal of information at the departments, and none should be deprived of the opportunity to visit them. Many cannot go on week days."

P. A. Allen, No. 507 S street northwest, said: "Put me down as being in favor of opening the public buildings on Sundays. I think it would be a good thing, and I heartily approve the suggestion. It would be of benefit to many."

E. J. Davis, No. 634 F street southwest, said: "I am in favor of the movement now being agitated to keep the public museums open on Sunday."

M. Farquhar, "Yes, I am in favor of opening the public museums to visitors on Sundays."

Nathan Parkins, No. 946 New York avenue, said: "I endorse the movement. Those who cannot visit the departments on other days could go on Sunday, and it would be a means of education to them. It affords a means of education."
